

Hello and welcome to the AYSS-2024 Conference!

Who are we? AYSS is a JINR community of over 1200 early-career scientists, and specialists. Our goal is to create a favorable atmosphere for research activities and promote close ties between generations, ensuring continuity in the Institute.

We organize conferences and schools and actively popularize science through lectures, festivals, and excursions. We supervise AYSS grants and awards, promote youth initiatives, participate in exchange programs and support educational school programs.

The JINR Association of Young Scientists and Specialists significantly contributes to the life of the Institute.

We are proud to be part of a large international scientific organization. Join us: there are always plenty of tasks for active people who are interested in science!
